

Okay, now we have been having some problems uploading Episode 5, to our feed, so this is probably going to be doing the only time we're doing this, but we have to just give you the URL of the episode here, due to problems that are currently unsolveable, and by the time they become solveable everything we discuss here will be out-of-date. But before I give out the URL of the episode there are a couple of things I need to announce:

- Soon issues of the Gamers Newsletter will be put into the GamersCast feed in the same format as the document you are viewing now
- Episodes of GamersCast are soon going to be run even more optimally than ever, because we are making some changes! So, if you think that changing to a new server was a great change, wait until you see this!
- Episode 5, can only be in Windows Media Player, RealPlayer, or any other player that supports Windows Media files, which is why I have to give you the episode this way, because we couldn't convert it to .MP4
- Co-hosts are still wanted, and if you are interested please send an e-mail to: GamersCast@gmail.com If we get enough co-host applicants we will be able to make GamersCast a weekly discussion Podcast!
- Regardless of what is said in Episode 5, we couldn't make it an enhanced Podcast because of the conversion issue, and the fact that you need a Macintosh computer to do it
- The GamersCast forums (found at: <http://gamerspadadmin.proboards42.com>) have undergone a large change, and is now much more organized, complete details are available at the forums, and lite details available in Episode 5
- Every now and then, if a game sticks out in our minds we will write a review for it on GamersCast! We are currently working on a review for Mario Tennis: Power Tour (GBA), if there is a game you want us to review, send an e-mail to GamersCast@gmail.com

And without further adude, here is the link to download or view Episode 5 of GamerCast! Copy and past it into your address bar.

<http://www.ourmedia.org/node/135258>